THE END

Easy is to judge,
the mistakes of others,
Difficult is to recognize our own mistakes.

Easy is to hurt someone,
Difficult is to heal the wounds.

Easy is to set rules,
Difficult is to follow
them.

Easy is to dream every night,
Difficult is to fight for a dream

Easy is to say we love,
Difficult is to show it

Difficult is to learn from them

Interested Students can start submitting their works (poems/articles/stories sketches/photography etc), for the next issue to any of the Executives of KSCSU, CRs or can hand it over personally to the Literary and Cultural secretary Tekhe Kapfo (W h a t s a p p – 9612245525)

The literary committee acknowledges all the genuine entry and sincerely contrite with unintended errors, if any.

DREAMS DO COME TRUE

(ONLY YOU CAN MAKE IT HAPPEN)

“Dreams don't work unless you take action. The surest way to make your dreams come true is to live them.” Nothing’s impossible, But remember everything cannot be done at one go, we are not God, we are bound to fail. But failing is not the end of the story, no matter how many times we fail, how we get up again after being pulled down, and how we continue trying is the way to write our story.

A man once said “Give me a life, a life with hardship, for without which what will I do eat chips?”. Well falling and failing is a part of life, it is inevitable. But one must learn to get up, one must learn to live the way of nature. Seasons comes and go, similarly opportunities will come and go, choose yours wisely, believe in your own timing.

“Success consists of going from failure to failure without loss of enthusiasm.”

If you go through the life history of people that are our ideal and are successful, you will find that they haven’t turned to be what they are just by snapping their fingers. They have worked their way up, fighting difficulties and overcoming the challenges. They sometimes have faced depression and have fought their way over it. Many of us lose our hope and dreams when hit by depression or despair. We give up and stop fighting for our dreams. There is one thing that you must leave behind if you really want to taste success – excuses. The excuses are the failure’s way of dumping their faults on you. If failed once, we must learn to take responsibilities and learn from our mistakes. Instead of making excuses, we must think of the way to win over the reasons for our last failure. To sum it up, we can say that dreaming of a goal is far easier than achieving it. And for fulfilling your dream you need a lot of things and also have to sacrifice many things. Above all, for fulfilling your dream plan and work according to it because it will lead you to the right path. And never forget to dream big because they help in overcoming every obstacle in life.

“The biggest motivator is you yourself. The day your inner-self is awakened towards any goal, nobody can stop you from reaching that goal.”

“Continue to exercise your imagination and it will take you higher. Continue to exercise your will and it will take you higher. Continue to exercise your conscience and it will take you higher.”

Self Love

I used to believe that love was something, given to me
 Something I needed to earn,
 Something I don't reach.
 Thinking that being in love
 By someone meant that I was worthy,
 That I was likeable and pretty.
 That was what I thought of it,
 But it is no longer me;
 I have realized that self love is very Special.
 It is the love that is only for you,
 Where you are both the giver and the receiver.
 There is no limit to how you can love yourself.
 Self love guarantees one thing,
 It is surely the most real and the most powerful feeling
 We Humans can ever experience.
 It is irreplaceable and is wonderful.
 The world is a much prettier place,
 When we live in a non-judgmental and loving space,
 By being free of judgment and hate.
 We welcome growth, connection and change.
 We get to connect our self with parts of the world with different forms.
 That is what love really is,
 it connects you with the unknown.
 My unknown was not knowing that there is so much to love about myself.
 But now I know, love spreads internally, that starts from within.
 This love is indeed indescribable and irreplaceable.
 This love is infinite and limitless.
 Love is not something given to you by someone else,
 you do not earn it, do not search for it in others.
 You have it within you, you give it to yourself.
 You have the power to love,
 within your palms, the world is yours.
 Self love is a different type of love
 A combination of everything that is meant for you .
 It is unique to all individuals,
 the feeling of it is indeed special.
 Self love gives you energy that lifts you to do better things,
 Self love is all about you
 Despite what you may believe in,
 You deserved to be loved.
 I hope you all get to experience Self Love,
 Look a little harder and love like there is no other.

If Only

And thereafter he left on his fate, motivated
And he starts working on it, for it
Making a better tomorrow in the unseen world.
Each day he lives on fighting,
Giving his strength, mind and soul
He gets lost deep into it.
And he got lost, the sight of the present.
And he lost the sight of what's really important,
and he got lost again, the tract of time.
The time, the future he wishes to get back.
Only he knows 'If only'
but there somewhere he realises nothing's changing,
As he keeps going.
Arguing over and over again in his mind,
and yet unable to forgive himself.
For all these time,
No doubt, He indeed became the one he dreamt,
After all, he gave everything away,
But something just didn't felt right.
He knew he left something behind,
He tried not to care about it much,
But it was much to bear.
He couldn't help but to live with the past again,
All these time, he fought hard and well
But what more he could be missing he'd wonder,
If only.
He knows, he'd still work hard,
But most importantly,
The treasure he lost with time,
He'd find them.

-R R Rivka

Miss me not.

Miss me not when to corpse I turn,
Wash my cadaver with tears of love.
But fight not with fate for my return,
For homecoming shall no more be a move.

Pluck me flowers of farewell,
And carry me to the path of eternity.
Where in your dreams I shall dwell.
Away from the world, now, lies my destiny,

Tell my mother, I'm born again in her.
I came from her, and now, back in her, I restore.
Tell my father, I'll shine like a glister,
Far above in the sky beautifully being adored.

My body may sleep under the ground,
But I'll live in breeze, in dreams, in you.

STRESSED DURING EXAM

Closed Eyes, Closed Mind, Closed Mouth did I do, I considered EXAM as a demon which I get to see when I open my eyes.
The more I try to fear it, the more it tried to scare me
and continue to find pleasure to notice my fear.

But sooner did I thought that,
I, should not be coward to 'THIS',
so I laid myself in deep preparation,
to challenge my idleness.

And little did I get to know that the best way to deal with this is to face them in the eye with a killer attitude.
And muster up some courage and never let the stress dictate.

That's how you and I will win ourselves and remind us that we have got A REASON TO CELEBRATE.

India at 100 years: My Dream

“At the stroke of the midnight hour, when the world sleeps, India will awake to life and freedom.” This is an extract from ‘Tryst with Destiny’ delivered by Jawaharlal Nehru on the eve of independence and since then, three quarters of a century has passed and we have been walking towards a new dawn for our country. This year marks the 75th year ever since the tri-colored flag was furled. Our country celebrates the victorious 75th year of independence under the theme of “Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav” and we are marching towards a promising horizon.

And with twenty-five years nigh to our centenary, I have a dream for India at 100 years.

It is my dream that when our country celebrates her 100th year, we would discard all kinds of division and enmity between ourselves. When we look at India today, there are prevalent cases of discrimination and racism on the basis on religion, race, appearance, tribalism, caste, and even based on the state from which one is from. These cases can be found in all pockets of the country. It is known even without our utterance that racism has become a major drawback in our country. For instance, ever since the emergence of the COVID-19 pandemic, the northeastern people of India have been discriminated more than before. It is saddening to realize how our own countrymen are building walls among ourselves and how we have become prejudiced in our own stand. And so it is my dream that when we celebrate our 100th year of independence, the walls of racism and division among our countrymen would collapse and every citizen would live in peace, harmony, and fraternity with each other.

It is my dream to see India in a better and self-reliant position. The Atma nirbhar Bharat has been put forward by the Government of India. Various schemes and organizations have stepped forward under the slogan to push India towards a self-reliant and independent position among the global markets and business. In twenty-five years time, it is my dream to see India become self-reliant of production so as to enhance the economy of the country and also to generate employment to the population and reach the unreached.

Equality and equity are two things that come to my mind when I ponder on my dream for India. It is my dream that India at 100 years would be a hotspot for equity and equality among the people. I yearn to see a day when there would be equality and equity in all walks of life and that there would be more empowerment of women alongside the equity and equality of the men folks of the country. I dream to see my country where recognition of the deserved irrespective of their caste, race, religion, tribe, language, and appearance is encouraged. I dream to see India to develop the poor facilities in the states, accelerate the art of self-employment through skills and talents, and also to gap the bridge between the rich and the poor in the coming decades.

The Tokyo 2020 Olympics have been an eye-opening event for us. With seven decorated medals from our own countrymen, we can see that there is an enormous potential of sports in our country. However, we fall short in terms of infrastructure and exposure and so it is my dream that India at 100 years would witness quality infrastructural facilities and platforms for the inspiring and talented athletes from every corner of the country which would encourage whilst putting our country in the front line as quality sports hub for athletes.

My dream for India at 100 years is to be in her best possible position in terms of economy, education, sports, equality, and all the other miscellaneous industries and fields, than what we are today. When India celebrates her 100th year, it is my dream to see peace and hope flourish in our land; I dream to see a day when harmony flourishes naturally among all our countrymen and the acts of discrimination, inequality, and racism would go down the drain.

For our motherland at 100 years, I yearn for all the good things.

India at 100 years: My dream

A nation is built on the grounds of sovereignty and its supreme legacy is left behind by the patriotic leaders creating a well-defined country.

India is an independent country, rich in diversity and the common tag name that it gets to be known far and wide across the globe as 'Incredible India'. The country has attained many feats throughout the years of Independence. The country celebrates its 75th Independence on 15th August 2021 and in preparation to the forthcoming celebration, honorable Prime Minister Narendra Modi emphasized on the theme 'Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav'. This calls for many visions and future designs with initiatives to bring forth the upcoming generations for a promising India. The wealth of India is known far and wide, its history, cultures and diversity adds more to it.

With the growing population, increasing demarcation across many neighboring countries continues. However, India stands still and peaceful, it negotiates and holds upright its integrity.

Every Indian is proud to be one and each individual has a dream for the country. For a sovereign, democratic and diverse nation like India, many aspire to make it better, pace higher and make better development ahead.

I envision India to be a nation where, in the span of 100 years, there is an absolute termination of poverty. The poverty rates in India are taking a high toll over the years. The current covid-19 has added more to the stress of poverty. However, when we make a statistical study, the rich population can help reduce the poverty rate but only if they are willing to offer a little of their wealth. India has attained her Independence for 74 years down the line but there are milestones yet to overcome. The statistical data of the poverty rates in the last census of 2011 saw a decline of 3.7%. A dream with no vision and dedication is as vague as a work with no wage. Sovereignty gives a nation an identity where the nation is liberated from any form of foreign interferences in its domestic affairs or indulgence.

India has a high resource availability of the young minds. If given a proper platform, the younger generations can make India a more technologically advanced nation. Japan is known for its latest and the most advanced countries in technology. The reason behind India's low technological advancement is education system. The Government of India has implemented schemes, programmes and plans for making a better India. Innovations and ideas are now booming and even teenagers are able to create applications, software designs and have become tech smart.

India's growing economy and advancements are a promising future for a highly developed nation in the attainment of its 100th Independence. Prime Minister's initiative of 'Make in India' that harbours the production of domestic manufacturing instead of imports and business encourages companies.

India is already self-reliant 'Atma Nirbhar' and each year it adds up to more achievements. Gradually, with eradication of poverty, well-educated and technologically smart generation, self-made nation and boost in culture, India in the 100 years of its independence will have fully attained its freedom. Freedom in a manner, where no citizen of the country is bound by ignorance- of education, poverty, technology and culture.

I dream of an India where with the above mentioned, that all these will lead to a better human being first of all. When there's poverty, there's chaos and fights out of frustration and sorrow. When there's lack of education, there's superiority and inferiority of understanding moral degradation in the society and social issues such as caste, religion etc. arises. And when there's lack of technological knowledge, India cannot proceed further in becoming a well-defined and developed country. The diversity and its richness will all be intertwined making India a centenarian country.

Come let's celebrate this independence day with a vision for a better India.
